The Houston Hash House Harriers

An International Running, Drinking, and Social Disorganization

RUN NUMBER 312

MONDAY, AUGUST 19, 1985

HARE: STEPHEN "GEEK" GARDNER

BY GUEST ON-SEC: BILL "ACAPULCO" "DRUMMER" "POSEUR" JANUARY

Basic Conflict

Yes, Geek's run was marked by Basic Conflict. Also, chase. As we gathered some 50 strong, or weak, for the start at Usener and White Oak in Woodland Heights, I sensed it right away. Something in the air on this steamy evening. Joint Master Propps introduced motley Hash Hounds. Geek lucidly gave instructions ("Flour, paper"). At the cry of "On On", away we went, heading northerly through the streets. Soon, marks of flour gave out. The pack divided, one part of the pack down one street, another part of the pack down another street. To my loud complaints of "Where's the trail?", Jim Weitzel yelled, "Now January, stop being pissy!" Conflict. Most of the pack reunited (by accident) in another block or two. Now heading generally eastward through the streets, the hounds crossed Houston Avenue and encountered an arrow pointing at us. Conflict. Many stopped in confusion. Conflict. But a few of us who have run enough years to remember the last run with the Geek as Hare, kept surging onward until stopped by the overlook at I-45, thinking we would find the true trail by divining Geek's mind. Bill Huber and I, realizing after more than five years we still cannot divine Geek's mind, turned back and caught up with the pack, now headed back. Suddenly, a harrier sounded an excited "On On", finding new trail headed southward, and the pack quickened its pace, winding through the streets back to White Oak Bayou. Running along a wooded path and across a footbridge, we came out on the banks of the Bayou. Sniffing around in both directions, we then headed back to the north, crossing and re-crossing trail we had already run. Conflict. Out of the gloom appeared the Geek and pointed us back toward the bayou and home: the deck of King Biscuit ice house on White Oak.

The ON ON at King Biscuit was marked by more Basic Conflict. Geek the Hare tried to tell us he meant for the trail to be a figure 8, so that the fast guys could run the loop and return to intercept the slow guys! Much screeching, bitching, biffing, overfing by the Harriers. Jack Bridge and Rick Mesterson, lost from the start, trickled in. John Commissi, lost before the start, sharfed at the hapless Rick, accusing him of causing it all. The leg of Shiner "Bock" beer mellowed all. DOWN DOWN for Geek the Hare, timely departed by Bruce Tatro. DOWN DOWNS for the variegated Hash Hounds: Ann "Mudlinger" Thomas, Teresa (?) Harrell, Gary Lee, Jackie Behrens, Amy Wall, Brian Wall, Bruce Vincent, Lucy Myers, Janet Henry. Songs misled by Rag Kizer and Religious Advisor Andrew Bakonyi. ON ON ON to Durham.
